Artists included in this exhibition make work that addresses a number of issues.

The nature of repetition – to do, to do it again, to say and then repeat again – Astrit Greca, Jacques Malgorn

Play with language – Vivien Therme makes paintings that are dangerous to touch, and Astrit Greca makes work that makes a positive image exist alongside its negative.

Other work made by Anne Marie Rognon takes a more pictorial form similar to a flag or a banner.

Hervé Bréhier makes work that take a serpentine form that weaves through the gallery space.

Sylvie Baduel makes multi-layered structures that we could interpret as a tent for shelter, a residence, an encampment as a last place for refugees or simply a place to share the moment.

From One Space to the Other – all the works in the exhibition are discrete but they respond to each other and interact with the physical space of the galleries sharing a sense of the serious, with a humourous informality. Works play with words, images and forms producing a sense of an intellectual rigour with an absurdity that generates a spirit of understanding of the pleasures of the moment.
